

CSI Haiti Clinic Update—March 2010

Here is a group of ladies we found out in the community. They shouted and hooted when they received a personal bucket.

This small item means the world to them. The group of kids are waiting for dum-dum suckers to arrive by sling shot. We had a bit of fun during a clinic in the mountain village of Kenscoff. We saw about 130 people that day in clinic.

The folks in the back of the truck are us returning from a long day in St. Mark. Our interpreters and Pastor Bone'.

The guys on the bicycles are two people that chased us over a mile to get a bucket. We were thronged in a remote primitive village forcing us to leave. We found the place by getting off in the wrong direction looking for the Thomazuau UPC.

The one on the right is deaf.

They just would not stop. My heart began to break so we stopped and gave them a bucket before going onward. Thanks to everyone that takes the time to pack a bucket and send it to CSI.

God Bless
Bro Butch
